NEVER HAPPY TOGETHER.

In the divorce proceedings of Ida F. Plank, of North Thirteenth street, against Claude H. Plank, residence unknown, Attorney H. Franklin Brossman, the master, filed his report with the court recommending a decree on the ground of desertion. They were married Sept. 6, 1914, and separated March 25, 1918. The master finds that the couple never lived happily together, and that she had to support herself at dressmaking. "After the parties were separated for several years," says the report, "the husband was in danger of being drafted into the army, and he came to Reading and induced the wife to accompany him to Schenectady, New York, and his providing a home was not in good faith."
